Does the Overkill solar BMS limit the current?

Yes, the Overkill Solar BMS limits the current to the settings programmed into the BMS. For example, the Overkill BMS I use is 8s 24volt 100amp, which limits the current to 100 amps for both charging and discharging. The manual advises the use of a secondary Over current protector or disconnect device.

Are BMS effective for battery balancing?

According to the user's experience, the BMSes they bought for half the $130 price elsewhere do effectively handle battery management. However, their balancing performance is poor, taking approximately a year or more to balance a battery with ~180Ah cells. The balancing process is also reportedly poorly controllable.

How much torque does a BMS have?

Suggest torque is 20 ft-lbs (27 Nm), or "Nice and snug." Warning: Do not pinch the balance wires under a nut! Instant smoke! 2.4.3 Prepare BMS ... 2.4.5 Temperature Sensor The temperature sensor serves one purpose, and that's to prolong the life of your battery cells when the temperature is too high or too low.

I don't normally leave reviews for product I purchase, but the one really deserved some attention. I recently purchase 8 of these cell with a BMS to build a 8s-24 volt battery for my inverter. it was put to the test this week when hurricane Zeta hit the south east united states and we lost power for a day .my battery ran my refrigerator, coffee maker, 2 television an air fryer for 20 mins ...

I have a 100ah LifePo4 battery with internal BMS. I am using Overkill Solar app to access the BMS. My first question is can someone show what the best settings are for each of the configurable settings. Screen shot is fine, then I can just copy those into my battery BMS. Second question has to do with the cell capacity voltage.

I'm building an off-grid ESS for my cabin and I have a 280 AH 24V LiFePO4 battery with an Overkillsolar 24V 100 Amp BMS. I'm using a SmartSolar MPPT 150/35 charge controller. So my question is this: Who is in charge of charging? The BMS is an impressively capable device with a lot of intelligence and will manage the batteries just fine on its own.
